The Grain and Provision Trade.

The wheat market was quite active yesterday forenoon, and the decline of the day previous was fully regained, but closed dull, though not strictly lower. No. 1 sold at 89a90; extra at 93:94c. Flour was also more active but unchanged, good to choice spring extra bringing $4,50 to 4,62 1-2 on board. Considerable quantities of pork and provisions sold for future delivery, the terms of which are given in our commercial columns .-Dressed hogs were in good demand; quits an active business doing on the streets, and good heavy ones ruled rather higher than heretofore this season. Receipts of wheat including flour, were about forty-six thousand bushels, namely : 2008 bbls flour and 35,325 bas, wheat. On New York despatches report common grades of wheat 1a2c lower, and flour without mate-

Knew his handwriting, the document relating to voting early was of his production. It was treasonable until after election.
On cross-examination witness said he once, the believed, owned a conseince; that he was a better judge of psy than of principles; that he had never experimented with honesty; that he never looked Truth or anybody else, straight in the face; that he had been several times publicly kicked, and rather liked it; that Plum gutting and squash-raising were his rational anusements; and that he was not afraid of the devil, but that the name of William H. Seward trightened him almost to death.

Henry A. Wise was next called. He appeared as if in the cold stage of an ague fit. His teeth rattled like castanets, and he could not after a word of testimony. He carried a case of duelling pistols with the motto— "One built goes true And five hundred askew."

The Court publicly sympathized with the witness because of his severe attack of Har-per's Ferry ague, and allowed him a seat at the stove; but some bad boys in the gallery

Gov. Wise sent his voluntary affidavit drawn by twelve brace of mules, and arranged in reams. The Court indefinitely postponed the reading, but complimented the writer as the "Paper-maker's friend," the illustrious patron of Barney Donnelly; and ordered that the document should be carefully filed away with the famous Oyster Message of the Governor of Virginia in the department of "unprodule press". partment of "unreadable papers."

The November Elections.—Definite returns have not yet been received from any of the States in which general elections have lately been held, except Louisiana, which has gone Democratic. Telegraphic dispatches give returns from scattered localities in Wisconsin, New York and New Jersey; but as these convey no indication of the results in those States, we do not choose to burden our columns with them.—St. Paul Plancer, Noc. 12.

The returns from Wisconsin, New York and New Jersey were just as "definite" as those from Louisiana-but their complexion was not so satisfactory, and therefore the Pioneer "does not choose to burden its coinames with them." No doubt the "burden" was hard to bear.

The notice given of a donation stated to have been made to Rev. Mr. Humphrey for the increase of his library was, in one particular, incorrect. The true state of the case is this: A communication was sent to Mr. Humbacher by one of his congregation, offering to this: A communication was sent to Mr. Hum-phrey by one of his congregation, offering to place $500 at his disposal for constituting a nucleus of a Pastor's Library. The gift was not to Mr. Humphrey as an individual, but to the Pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, to be held perpetually for the use of that Pastor, whoever he may be. It was given under the influence of the conviction that every Church should provide its Pastor with some of the more expensive and stand. with some of the more expensive and standard materials of study and reference; and in the hope that, by donations from other sources, this nucleus might gather gradually about itself a large and valuable store of in-tellectual wealth. ## From Millio, Iowa.

A correspondent, S M. M., sends us from this place nine subscribers and writes: The paper gives entire satisfaction to all who have seen it. The way the thing has worked here for the past few years is, Galena, Iil., has had the trade from a good part of Iowa. Grant and Lafavette Counties have furnished them with their political and commercial papers.

This state of things for the past few years has been attributable to extreme high freight on the M. & M. R. R. Since that road has reduced its freight tariff on grain, farmers here are turning their attention to Milwankee markets for their produce, and are now taking the best commercial papers from there. This, with the extreme low price of the Sen tinel, is the reason it takes so readily here. Yours, &c., S. M. M.

Democratic Disputenists.

Governor McWILLER, the Democratic Executive of Mississippi, in his recent message to the Legislature of that State, expresses the sensible opinion that the Republicans will carry the Presidential Election in 1960; but then foolishly proposes to " dissolve the Union," as the remedy for the anticipated political mishap. Gov. McWillie goes so far as to recommend that the Legislature of Mississippi take the initiatory steps, by caliing a Convention and inviting the Southern States, generally, to participate in it. We do not observe that the Northern Democratic allies of Gov. McWillie and his party, have anything to say against this "sectional" proposition. Coming from a Democratic quarter, they tacitly endorse it.

Mr. McQueen, one of the South Carolina Democratic Members of Congress, is also afflicted with Union-dissolving spasms, and would have taught these Pro-Slavery fanatics a more useful lesson. If, with the Union to back them, Virginia and Maryland were frightened out of their propriety, by the mad attempt of 16 white men and 5 negroes, to liberate the slaves, what would they do without the "aid and comfort" of the Union? The entire South would be in hourly danger of a Servile insurrection. The Union is their only safety, and talk as they may, in the vain expectation of searing or deceiving the People of the North, they know and appraciate this truth. The election of a Republican President in 1860 will strengthen rather than weaken, the Union of the States,

WM. H. BOGART, the corresponding editor of the New York Courier & Enquirer, in summing up our great victory in that States thus refers to the fature, and to the feelings and intentions of its people in regard to "the State State Committee at Albuny for distribution greatest statesman on the American continuent:"

The intention of this city sent several thousand or their manifesto eprops to the opening of the irrepressible conflict at Harper's Ferry, to the State Committee at Albuny for distribution throughout the rural districts, but Cassidy, Cagger and Co. refused to forward the document:"

In all those scenes we turned to dermany, and nover turned in vain. He eulogized the Germans for the respect shown to women in having them at the fore seen in all his experience. He hoped that the Germans would inocalate the Americans with such a taste, for the former never went out to enjoy themselves, but their wives and children went with them. He also paid a high tribute to Carl Schurz, of Wisconsin, and concluded by saying, that the German dement would be what it should be, and what it can be—the glorious element of try. A Plainte of Thurlow Weed.

The genial writer of pen and link portraits in the Leader thus describes one of the most prominent men in American public life:

"Tall, angular, and large-boned, with thick end wiry gray hair cut close and adhering vigorously to a long, strong, angular, and massive head, full of nervous force—and massive head, full of nervous force—this gentleman, with harsh, square features, prominent cheek bones, lips habitually compressed; shaggy gray eyerows fringing a sloping shelf of forchead; hazy gray eyes of submits great power of severe expression; a nose long, muscular and standing out like a sential on the provincial beaver hat, and surmounting largely boned limbs cased in the rural style of a gentleman farmer paying his regular visit to an agricultural fair—such, as near as we can give it, is the outer man of Thurlow Weed, beyond all comparison the first unofficial public man in the United of up with inexhaustible energies of purpose, and his whole body is thrown forward daughter, who had been contined to her tead up with inexhaustible energies of purpose, and his whole body is thrown forward daughter, who had been contined to her tead up with inexhaustible energies of purpose, and his whole body is thrown forward daughter, who had been contined to her tead to the most included a wealth of hioses. Carlyle would say, one of the 'born kings of men,' endowed with the only divine right which a Republic recognizes.

'The old man'—as he is familiarly called—as a journalist has worked his way up from the hundlest grades of the profession, and every suffering or aspiring fellow crafts—man of Dr. Faust and Benjamin Franklin may rest assured of receiving from Thurlow Weed a brother's sympathy, as ardent and fresh to-day as when this great master of journalistic and political strategy first handled pica type in the composition room of a village newspaper. Gifted with a retentive incomory, great natural knowledge of men and their motives, broad human instincts, and a chivalry of purpose, content to pursue high objects through all agencies, his most marked characteristic is, that once resolved to accomplish an object, he enters upon his pursuit with a freshness of determination ig to moring every obstacle, and a stoicism which disdains explanation or apology for the means he may find necessary and which the end, in his judgment, will justify. This is a trait almost invariably accompanying men of the hishest natural force, and is, in fact, a leady of the daughter, which was deposited in the ody of the daughter, which was deposited in the ody of the daughter, which was deposited in the ody of the daughter, which was deposited in the ody of the daughter, which was deposited in the ody of the daughter, which was deposited in the ody of the daughter, which was deposited in the ody of the daughter, which was deposited in the ody of the daughter, which was deposited in the ody of the daughter, which was deposited in the ody of the daughter, which was deposited in the ody of the daughter, which was deposited in the ody of the last tene for it has the gloon of despair. This is a trait almost invariably accompanying men of the highest natural force, and is, in fact, a meassity, where the interests dealt with are numerous, complex, and involving extended criticisms. "I would not support Mr. Douglas for the Presidency if he were to make an aridavit to observe any platform that any be drawn. I know what he has done, and that is enough for inc."

We should think that Harper's Ferry would have taught these Pro-Steveny fanat. cian—a man who uses party power for indi-vidual aggrandizement; but these charges cannot stand the test of an investigation con ducted by men competent to judge him. He is the maker of men, politically considered, and not the man who seeks to make himself.

and not the man who seeks to make himself. A power and a voice of coursel always consulted in his own party, he has invariably refused to hold positions of official promitions or party reward. It is well known that he was offered a Cabinet position under tion. Taylor, but upon that occasion, as upon all others, he preferred the consciousness of individual power to any public recognition of its services. In a pecuniary point of view, until a recent period, his largh generosity in support of political objects know not how to restrain itself within the limits of his means; and those who know thin host speak in praise. object of an extended point in the chart in the product of the chart in the chart i Milwauker County Official.

It is under very able management, as we found to be admitted by all the roads we visited, and its trains are run with surpassing promptness and regularity. In short, the entire operation of the road testifies to the ability, skill and economy with which it is managed. The fares upon it for travel are lower than those of any other road in the country, and under the competition to which it is subjected from every side, perhaps a less stringent regulation in this respect is its due."

Fate of Old Brown.—The editor of the N. Y. Herald says that he has seen a letter from Gov. CITY AUCTION ROOM. HOME AGAIN, AFTER BEING ABmore promising or investing than our beautiful City, Sharauker. Find busines in all the cities generally dull, except New Fork, and dull particularly in all real estate operation: Money is abundant in New York, Beston, Philade-prin and Battimore; in any one of these cities in one year he obtained 25 six per cent, for loads seem rices, but at present; but that is reacting away very rapidir. A much better feeling now exists towards the West than there its six months axo, and I have no doubt in my own mind that in six munths or twelve months we shall see a greater one it we will wannes to hay the promptir the interest on our city indebtedness. I seem home beening defacted with Missauket and see a first reaction in all operations in our city, and still a greater one it we will wannes to hay the promptir the interest on our city indebtedness. I seem home beening defacted with Missauket he came must to exchange it for any lam satisfiedly my own mind that we will go also it and grow more rapidly
the next five year, thank we have for the last ten years. I am, mys., pertently contened with Miswant is any am now really to attend to my Auction

THE CONTENTED MAN. (FROM THE GERMAN.)

Why need I strive for wealth?
It is enough for me It is enough for me
That Heaven hath sent me strength and health,
A spirit glad and free;
Grateaul these blessings to receive,
I sing my hymn at morn and eve.

On tone, what floods of riches flow! House, herds and gold have they; Yet Be's best joy they never know, But fret their hours away. The more they have they seek increase; Complaints and cravings never cease. A vale of tears this world they call, To me it seems so fair;

It countiess pleasures hath for all,
And none denied a share.
The little birds on new fledged wing,
And insects revel in the spring. For love of us, hills, woods and plains

In beautious hues are clad; And birds sing far and near sweet strains Caught up by echoes glad; "Rise," sings thel ark, "your task to ply;" The nightingale sings "fullaby." And when the golden sun goes forth, And all like gold appears, When bloon o'crapreads the glowing parth, And fields have ripering ears, I think these glories that I see, My kind Creator mane for me.

Then loud I thank the Lord above, And say in juyful mood, His love indeed it Pather's love, He wills to all men good. Then let me ever grateful live, Enjoying all he defins to give.

THE MURMUR OF THE SEA.

Over the wide and sparkling seas proudly bounded the good ship Antoinette, with her precious freight from Caleutta. Joy was in the hearts, joy in the eyes of many a sunburnt mariner, as he trinumed the sails which were drawing him with mighty force towards his native land. The homeward waves always hook brightest; the homeward breeze has always a breath of balm and kiss of love; and the thoughts of many a dear one on the distant shore of liberty, made their manly pulses thrill with delight. How clearly the images of the loved at home became now defined in their fond and yearning memories, and how they blessed the kindly waters which, though still they separated them, were lessening their yielding space!

space! There was on board a family by the name of Strafford—father, mothes, and their only two children, Marcions and Ellena, who had just arrived at the years of manhood and Just arrived at the years of mannood and womanhood; and, as they stood tog-ther upon the deck, conversing with the captain, the latter remarked a troubled look upon the face of the elder Straford, though the

which they are minounced to care. All the complaints of the strometh and howels, weakness of the digestive ortions and of the system generally, bilinus and liver affections, night favers, head aches, piles contiveness, consumention, theomatism, scurry, impurity of the blood, or blotched and sallow complexions, soon yield to their curative properties. A single trial invariably sentres then the little of the best family medicine now before the public. For sale by the proprietor, W. B. MOFFAT, ach is office, 2% Broadway, and by Store Keepers and Druggists generally.

"Here you have been reaping a fortune for years in the East, surrounded by the blessings of a happy family and the smiles of good luck, and disease has never crossed your threshold, and reverse in business has not once befailen you. Returning, with every prospect of a fair voyage, to the native land for which you have so long yearned—and while your wife and children are overjoyed at the thought, you alone seem sal. I have noticed it ever since we left port; and now tell me, if the enquiry be not intrusive, what is the reason?"

"You will laugh at me when I tell you," replied Mr. Strafford, "even as my family did when I first thought superstitionsly of a strange circumstance which happened to us ali, at least a month before we sailed."

"And pray what could that be, that leaves them busyant and yourself mournful?" asked the captain.

"First let me ask you, are you at all supersitions?" said Mr. Strafford,

"All sailors are, more or less," replied the captain, in a grave tone, "and I believe all men are, however much some may try to persuade themselves to the contrary. I conless that I am in somethings—notions trivial and absurd, peculiar and pashaps insane—
but still they sometimes rule me, though I might be ridicaled, should I mention what they are." MANUFACTURER AND DEALER IN CARRIAGES OF ALL KINDS, Repository on Spring Conveyed 21 and 20, 52, bis on hand a large Stock of Carriages, Eastern and home groundactory. Then I can speak to you without re-

"I certainly do hear it, but not so plainly as before we left the land," was their reply.

'It was as distinct to me; but now it fades away again. Strange that you, too, cannot hear it, 5 said Mr. Strafford to the Captain. "It is imagination, surely," replied Cap-tain Thurston; "your minds have been so much occupied with apprehensions of dan-much occupied with apprenensions of danger."

"It is unaccountable!" sighed Mr. Strafford, unconvinced. "But where was I? I was telling you that even when awake as I am now, after starting from my dreams, I have heard it just as plainly; and this, mark you, was on land. More than this, at other times, and in broad day, and when variously engaged, at meals, in social chat, or at play, we have occasionally heard the same mysterious murmur, as if the great ocean had commissioned some warning minister to dissuade missioned some warning minister to dissuade us from our voyage."

"But you do not all seem to be equally affected by it," said the Captain.
"No." replied Mr. Strafford; "they at-

"No." replied Mr. Strafford; "they attribute the phenomenon as you do, to our dwelling too much on the worst chance which suld happen. In truth, I was never superstitions before." "Rely on it," said the captain. "your fear, if it is, of shipwreck, will prove illusive. We shall have a safe voyage, and I shall sit with you at home, and ask if you hear the murmur still."

"So we hope," said Mrs. Strafford, smilling,
"and Richard, you must think so too."
"You may be right," returned Mr. Strafford; "and God grant that the dismal sigh we heard echoes only in the imagination."
The captain walked away to his duties, and the conversation of the family reverted to the recollections of their native home.
For some weeks before they left Calcutta a

the Asiatics, though at the time of their em-pestilence had swept off many thousands of the Asiatics, though at the time of their embarkation it had mainly disappeared on its barkation. None of those on board had been affected by it, and it was presumed that the clear air of the ocean would lessen all chance of its presence among them. But the idea was a vain one. Two weeks had not elapsed before the destroyer made himself manifest, and by twos and three the hardy crew became his victims.

Their visible malady did its appalling work so speedily, that within a week after the first death on board, but a dozen of the men were left, save the family of Richard Strafford.— We have among his crew, had brought him by sheer anxiety, to the door of death; while the wan remnant of his late full complement of men went haggardly about their increased labors as if the skeleton Death stood bodily before them, grinning, with bony hand, to clutch them every instant. All remedies brought them had failed, and now they put no faith in them; each looked to see his mate sink beneath the next attack, and shuddered for himself.

row. Yet woe was in the ship. The very beauty of the scene made desolation more terrible; and as one after another went feet foremost over the flying vessel's side, link after link was torn away from that chain of hope which bound the sad survivors to the thoughts of lengthened life. HEAVY BUSINESS.—The Detroit and Milwaukee Railway is now doing a very large freight business. On every trip across the Lake their ferry steamships have as much freight as they can conveniently carry. This morning there were not less than five hundred tons of merchandling at the steam and profiles along the steam of the st morning there were not less than size hundred tons of merchandize at the steamers' landing place, Eastward and Westward bound, and every side one looks the buge "wogons" are seen moving about the streets under like little mountains of goods. Large and commodious as are the Company's present dooks, they will soon require more room to accommodate the increase state of the street and trains of their line. The earnings for this month will show an enormous increase over any previous one since the opening of the road to Lake Michigan, and we imagine will convince some of those sayacious Canadians who sneered at Mr. Brudges for the neutre part he took in bringing about the completion of the D. & M. Rallway, that it is not a very "had beargains" Wileyt—Firm shall not a very "had beargains" Wileyt—Firm shall not a
